COMMON MYTHS ABOUT THE HOME BUYING PROCESS

REAL ESTATE BROKERS

MYTH
REAL ESTATE BROKERS ARE PROHIBITED FROM COMMUNICATING WITH APPRAISERS.

FACT
Brokers are permitted to communicate with an appraiser and to provide them with additional information as long as the communication is not intended to unduly influence the outcome of the appraisal. The exchange of relevant information—including terms of the sale, relevant comps, and home improvements—can help an appraiser develop a more credible opinion of value.

MYTH
NOTHING CAN BE DONE IF A BROKER HAS CONCERNS OR QUESTIONS REGARDING A COMPLETED APPRAISAL.

FACT
If there are questions or concerns with an appraisal, there are concrete steps brokers can take through the lender, like submit additional comps for the appraiser to consider, request the appraiser correct errors in the appraisal report, and ask the appraiser to provide further detail to explain his/her conclusion.

MYTH
APPRAISERS REQUEST COPIES OF THE PURCHASE AGREEMENT FROM BROKERS SIMPLY SO THEY’LL KNOW HOW MUCH TO APPRAISE THE HOME FOR.

FACT
Appraisers are required to review the purchase agreement (if available during the ordinary course of business) to fully understand the terms of the transaction. Appraisers don’t simply look at a pending sale price and try to “justify” the transaction. They perform research and analyses to provide their own opinion of value.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Myth</th>
<th>Fact</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A LENDER AND AN APPRAISER CANNOT COMMUNICATE BEFORE, DURING, OR AFTER AN APPRAISAL IS COMPLETE.</td>
<td>MYTH</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Not only are lenders permitted to talk to appraisers, they must. Communication is essential for the exchange of appropriate information, including the intended use of the appraisal, the scope of work necessary for credible assignment results, and more.</td>
<td>FACT</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NOTHING CAN BE DONE IF A LENDER HAS CONCERNS OR QUESTIONS REGARDING A COMPLETED APPRAISAL.</td>
<td>FACT</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If there are questions or concerns with an appraisal, there are concrete steps lenders can take, like submit additional comps for the appraiser to consider, request the appraiser correct errors in the appraisal report, and ask the appraiser to provide further detail to explain his/her conclusion.</td>
<td>MYTH</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lenders are entitled to engage an appraiser directly. However, to avoid any potential undue influence on the appraiser, certain safeguards are required (e.g., in most cases the person at the lending institution selecting the appraiser cannot be the same person approving the loan).</td>
<td>FACT</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AMCs ARE NECESSARY TO ENSURE THAT APPRAISERS AREN'T INFLUENCED BY LENDERS.</td>
<td>FACT</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Regardless of whether an AMC is used, lenders are not permitted to influence the value of a home, and licensed and certified appraisers are required by law to follow strict guidelines (i.e., the Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice) that guarantee an unbiased and meaningful analysis of value.</td>
<td>MYTH</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
MYTH
An appraiser is hired by the borrower.

FACT
Even though the borrower may be responsible for the cost of an appraisal, appraisers are hired by lenders. Appraisers provide an analysis of the collateral, so that lenders understand the value of a property when making the loan decision.

MYTH
The money put into a home translates dollar-for-dollar into a higher appraisal.

FACT
The cost put into a home improvement project may very well add value to a home; however, the value of any improvements are based on what the market is willing to pay for them, and may not necessarily correlate to the cost. Not all renovations positively impact property values.

MYTH
Appraisers set the value of a home.

FACT
Appraisers don’t set the value of a home, nor do they confirm a home’s sale price. Their role is to produce a credible opinion of value which reflects the current market.

MYTH
Appraisers and home inspectors perform the same function.

FACT
Though both provide crucial information, their roles are very different. An appraiser provides an objective, unbiased analysis so the lender can better understand the value of a property. An inspector is typically hired by the borrower and performs an objective visual examination of the physical structure and systems of a house to ensure the structural integrity of the property.
MYTH

HOMEBUILDERS ARE PROHIBITED FROM COMMUNICATING WITH APPRAISERS.

FACT

Builders are permitted to communicate with an appraiser and to provide them with additional information as long as the communication is not intended to unduly influence the outcome of the appraisal. The exchange of relevant information—including construction features, details, and upgrades, as well as relevant comps—can help an appraiser develop a more credible opinion of value.

MYTH

NOTHING CAN BE DONE IF A BUILDER HAS CONCERNS OR QUESTIONS REGARDING A COMPLETED APPRAISAL.

FACT

If there are questions or concerns with an appraisal, there are concrete steps builders can take through the lender, like submit additional comps for the appraiser to consider, request the appraiser correct errors in the appraisal report, and ask the appraiser to provide further detail to explain his/her conclusion.

MYTH

APPRAISERS ONLY RELY ON COMPARABLE SALES AND DO NOT TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THE COST TO BUILD A HOME.

FACT

Appraisers do need to consider the cost to build a home and, at times, must perform a cost approach to deliver a credible appraisal. However, because cost does not always equal value, appraisers cannot simply look at what it costs to build a home to provide an opinion of value. They must perform research and analyses to determine what the marketplace is willing to pay.